S. H. GOVE RESIGNS FROM CITY COUNCIL.

City Island to Be Filled up and Put in Shape For Future Improvement.

The City Council met in regular session Monday evening.

Bills to the amount of $231.02 were presented and ordered paid. Communication of A. J. Wilder was read and filed with other claims for future action.

S. H. Gove tendered his resignation as president and member of the council, which was accepted.

The report of the inspectors of election was received and placed on file.

The clerk was instructed to get bids for printing of licenses, schedule of licenses and procure dog tags.

The council ordered that all refuse and trash hauled from streets be dumped on the marsh lands on the City Island and the president of the council appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. Mills, Conrad and Dr. Klock to superintend the raising of funds to fill the City Island.

Struck By Brickbat.

Thomas Zuber, the young son of M. H. Zuber, is wearing his right eye in a sling as the result of some trouble with Buck Harris, a colored boy, last Saturday afternoon.

The boys evidently had been having a wordy difficulty, while on Volusia avenue near the electric light plant, and the colored boy applied to young Zuber an epithet which he resented with his fist. The boy backed off and securing a piece of brick struck Tom in the face with it, cutting through the side of the nose just beneath the right eye.

Dr. Bohannon dressed the wound and Tom is getting along nicely although he had a close shave from the loss of an eye or possibly his life had the blow been a trifle higher.

Mr. Zuber has made no complaint in the matter, leaving the punishment of the colored youth to his mother who promised to do it thoroughly.

Summer Normals.

The season for Summer Normals is coming to a close and from all reports it has been one of the best in Florida's history. The State Normal at Gainesville enrolled 130 students and owing to the earnest work done the authorities are making plans to credit these students with due amount on a university course—the boys getting credit at the State University at Gainesville and the girls at the State University for Girls at Tallahassee. Next year the Summer Normal will be held in the University buildings at Gainesville.

With reference to this State University of ours it is only fair to say that it is an educational organization of which we may well be proud. Laboratory and library accommodations are excellent. Practical work is being done in civil, mechanical and electrical engineering—the electrical library being the largest south of Atlanta. The experimental station, together with the horticultural department, cultivates between two and three hundred acres of land, and an additional building for the experimental station will be erected this fall.

The general library of 10,000 volumes is supplemented by additional libraries of two or three hundred volumes each, adapted to the needs of several departments. The prospect for the Law Department, introduced this year, is excellent.

By January first two new $40,000 buildings will be completed and the dormitory accommodations doubled. The men in charge of the various departments are making every effort to offer helpful University training to the boys of the State.

ALADDIN OR THE WONDERFUL LAMP AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

Will Be Initial Performance of Daytona Dramatic Organization of Amateurs.

Next Friday, Sept. 3rd, the Daytona Dramatic Organization of Amateurs will present at the Daytona Opera House, as their opening play, the drama entitled Aladdin or the Wonderful Lamp, a fairy story that has thrilled almost every one at some time during their childhood.

Dr. W. S. Sneed, the manager of the organization, is doing all in his power to make the play a success and is being earnestly assisted by all those to whom parts have been assigned.

Miss Alberta Lourey will play the role of Princess and Miss Lillie Mabbette, who is particularly adapted for the character, will take the part of the widow Mustapha. Dr. Sneed will play the leading role of Aladdin, from boy up to prince, while the other heavy role will be taken charge of by Clarence Bennett. They will be ably assisted by a score or more of the other members of the organization, among whom will be the Misses Lucy Pellett, Ethel Wood, Grace Burdick, Emma and Katie Dittman, Nellie and Edith Stilling, Anna Mabbette, the Messrs. Clyde Miller, Will Gardiner, Ernie Ballough, Ralph Lapp, Cecil Pettepher and others.

The play is to be given as a benefit for the Daytona High School which should prove a factor in securing a large audience in connection with the fact that an organization of this character is beneficial to the city both in an educational and amusement way and should be heartily supported by the public.

The music will be furnished by a full orchestra and as this has been under the direction of Prof. W. W. Wood for the past three or four weeks, some good music is assured.

Successful Farming.

As an instance of successful general farming in this section, the case of Harry Futch, who is located in the hammock lands in the western part of the city, may be cited. Mr. Futch this year raised a lot of field corn and having more than he needed for his own stock shelled a quantity of it and brought it sacked to H. S. Miller for disposal. This should be more generally done as it would reduce the quantity of corn necessary to be shipped here from the North and the money paid for it would remain in circulation here. Mr. Futch on a piece of ground 80x300 feet produced $250 worth of peas and beans and from less than an acre he sold 517 dozen of green corn at fifteen cents per dozen, returning him $77.55.

J. W. Ball, another of Daytona's successful farmers, says that he sold $125 worth of roasting ears from an acre planted in corn and had the fodder in addition. On this same acre of ground he had earlier in the season planted lettuce and while it proved a poor crop, being much less than the average, it returned him $250.

WONDERFUL WONDERBERRY

ONLY A COMMON WEED.

Said to Be Product of Luther Burbank and Widely Advertised by J. L. Childs.

Some time in the spring the writer saw in one of the magazines an advertisement by John Lewis Childs of the Wonderberry and because of the supposed reliability of this seed house and the great reputation borne by Mr. Burbank was beguiled into investing in some of the seed with the belief that surely here was something of value. Countless numbers throughout the country did likewise, quite a number of Daytonians being included. The berry was said to resemble the blueberry in size and appearance, though far superior in every way, and the plant to be thrifty and rapid in growth.

The seeds when received were carefully planted, germinated readily and the young plants grew off very nicely beginning to bloom when only four or five inches in height. About this time F. A. Mann, while down from Seabrook, was shown the plants and at once pronounced them the same as some brought from California two years ago by Mrs. Mann, when returning from a visit in that State. They were known to her as the "garden huckleberry." Mr. Mann said they grew like weeds and were weeds, the berries tasting very much like little green tomatoes. He still had numbers of the plants, as they had seeded themselves from the first year.

The writer persevered in the growth of the plants, however, only to find that Mr. Mann's estimate of their value was probably a correct one, although it is possible that a taste for the berries might be acquired. The fact that the leaf roller has destroyed most of the plants should place them in a class above weeds and perhaps by careful cultivation the berry may be improved but as it now stands there is no dodging the fact that all who bought seed of the wonderberry were "stung."

As a safeguard to others the following is taken from an editorial in a recent issue of the Southern Ruralist:

"We have already several times expressed ourselves concerning the real value of the 'creations' of Mr. Burbank. We have endeavored to be entirely fair, have admitted his genius, but have regretted the consciousness of exploiting being done by or with his name.

"Mr. Burbank himself shall furnish the evidence. In a recent signed communication to the Rural New Yorker he gives a list of what he believes to be his commercial successes. The catalogue is probably complete, it is certainly varied. It is chiefly remarkable, however, from the fact that he admits that the creations on which his fame rests are successfully grown only on the Pacific coast. The Burbank potato, crimson winter rhubarb, cherries and plums are all this nature. His own statement shows that he can claim but a single horticultural success—namely in Wickson and related plums.

"We prefer to believe that Mr. Burbank himself is not directly responsible for the preposterous claims made in his name. Promoters and irresponsible writers in popular periodicals must stand for most of the false claims made for his wonderful 'creations.'

"The latest alleged phenomenon—the 'Wonderberry'—has been a ridiculous failure and disappointment to every one who has tried it in the East. The Massachusetts State Horticultural Society, at its recent annual exhibition, had it labeled 'worthless.' Later, some of the best scientific experts of the country have pronounced it to be nothing but our common black nightshade."

It is said to be an assured fact that the county seat is to have an other bank, the necessary stock having been fully subscribed for the new institution.
